DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).
3. Claims 1-2, 4-7, and 9-13 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okumura (US 5,370,300) and further in view of Helms et al (US 3,462,577).

Okumura disclose a resistance welding method for bonding a lead wire to a metal member comprising the steps of pressing a lead wire which is clamped by a first welding electrode, an inspection lead-wire chuck clamp (figures).

Okumura fails to teach a plurality of second electrodes, passing currents through the second welding electrodes, measuring and determining the currents, and current sensors.

However, Helms et al disclose the method of using two electrodes on both side of the middle electrodes, with detectors to measure and determine the currents, for the purpose of concentrating the current to a specific area of the weld joint (col. 3, lines 5-15, lines 38-46, and col. 4, lines 23-31).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to have two additional electrodes, with detectors to measure and determine the current as taught by Helms, in Okumura.

In addition, using a direct current would have been obvious to an ordinary skill in the art, since that would depend on the design expediency.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 3 and 8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior arts of record fails to teach the step of passing current through the plurality of second welding electrodes, each of the plurality of second welding electrodes are biased upward and into contact with the metal member by springs.
